

GIVE EVERY GROWER SQUARE TREATMENT

Says Passonneau in Urging Members of Burley Pooled To Sign Up Neighbors

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 23.—Members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association are urged to sign up their neighbors who remained out of the association last fall but are reminded that the "outsider" should be treated considerably, will full recognition of his rights, in a statement made by Col. Joseph Passonneau, chief of the field service division of the burley association.

Col. Passonneau tells the organized growers that it is only by following this policy that the best result can be expected and says that if it is followed the association practically will be 100 per cent strong by next fall.

"Every member must be loyal to the association," says the statement, "by trying to persuade the grower outside to join the association, but he should say nothing to him, or do nothing to him that will hurt his feelings or cause him to think ill of the association or its members."

Col. Passonneau says that the man who remains outside punishes himself by getting less for his tobacco than his neighbors, but that he has the right to follow his own judgment and that failure to recognize that right will do more to embarrass the association than anything else which could be done by its members.

The statement of Col. Passonneau in full, follows:

"Now that the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association has reached a position of commercial success, and is so much stronger in every way than had been anticipated it would be at such an early time, there is no reason why the association can not be made practically 100 per cent strong."

"Approximately 85 per cent of the growers of burley tobacco have joined the association. These men have joined because they believed that the co-operative selling of burley tobacco would be to their own benefit and consequently would benefit every branch of business in the burley district. The 15 per cent that stayed out, in most instances, probably believed that it would pay them better and be of more benefit to the whole business of the state if the tobacco association was not formed. Some believed conscientiously that the manufacturers would not buy from the association, other doubted the possibility of successfully managing an organization as large as the burley co-operative. But the manufacturers are buying our tobacco and paying us a very good price for it. Efficient and economical management has been instituted; consequently there can be offered no good objection to the association in the future. We want to make it unanimous."

"But to make it unanimous, the policies of the association and its membership must be consistent and generous. We believe that the men who failed to sign last year made a serious mistake. That should be their only penalty. We believe that the men who fail to join this year will again be seriously in error. In this instance, also, the disadvantage which will come to them, through their neglect to join with their neighbors in making a better and more prosperous Kentucky, should be the only disadvantage they will suffer and it will be sufficient."

"I am therefore urging all of the members of the organization to use every decent means of persuading non-members to sign a contract with the organization for the next five years. But if they do not sign, we must be generous with them. We are certain that we are right and that they are wrong, but their own opinion is theirs, and if they prefer staying out this year, we should have sympathy for them, and treat them generously."

"That is the only way the association can succeed. Any other attitude on the part of our members will do more to embarrass the association than anything else that could be done."

"Our association is so strong, even this year, that its membership will be better off financially than will those growers who preferred to sell independently. For

Wesleyan Girls Denied Holiday, Take One

Winchester, Ky., Feb. 23.—Authorities at Kentucky Wesleyan College here failed to recognize the annual appearance of Washington's birthday Wednesday by declaring a holiday. Members of the student body, however, did not overlook the fact. They gathered on the campus in the morning and after giving fifteen lusty "rahs" ending with "Washington," went about their business of taking a holiday.

LANCASTER MEN FIGHT WITH GUNS ON STREET

Lancaster, Ky., Feb. 23.—In a grower outside to join the pistol duel between Will Adams and Ezra Pollard, white, both received minor wounds. The battle is said to have been the result of a family quarrel. Chief Bratton arrested and disarmed both men. Arraigned before Police Judge Miller for breach of the peace, they were fined $50 and costs.

Grand Jury Investigates Knickerbocker Disaster

Washington, Feb. 23.—More than 30 witnesses were summoned to appear before the grand jury today when it began hearing evidence in the case of nine men held by the coroner's jury in connection with the Knickerbocker disaster the night of January 30, in which 98 persons lost their lives when the roof of the structure caved in on the audience. District Attorney Peyton Gordon said probably it would take a week to conclude taking evidence.

Dies Of Pneumonia

Ravenna, Ky., Feb. 23.—Mrs. Virginia Yarborough, aged 34, is dead here of pneumonia.

The trustees of Georgetown College have refused to accept the resignation of Prof. John L. Hill, so that he might work with the Southern Baptist board.

that reason, we should have no malice toward them. With 85 per cent in the 15 per cent on the outside cannot hurt us even if they 'dump.' We will sell our tobacco at profitable prices if we continue to be business-like in our methods of operation, but every individual member must be equally business-like."

"That is why we were successful in obtaining $10,000,000 from the War Finance Corporation and the assurance of support from the Federal Reserve Bank, as well as excellent and immediate help from the bankers of Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio. If the association wishes to maintain its credit and the confidence of the government banking agencies, as well as the local bankers, it must be strictly a business concern. Neither the association nor its members can afford to practice unfair competition. The man on the outside has a right to remain out if he chooses. He has a right to sell his tobacco wherever he pleases, just as the association has. We know that he cannot succeed in getting as much for his tobacco as the members will get for theirs."

"If every member of the organization understands that principle and follows it, our association will be practically 100 per cent strong before next fall."

"Every member, therefore, must be loyal to the association by trying to persuade every grower on the outside to join the association, but he should say nothing or do nothing to him that will hurt his feelings or cause him to think ill of the association or its members."

"That is the policy that has always been followed by the associations on the Pacific Coast, with the exception of one, and this one is the only unsuccessful organization in the United States that is organized according to the California plan."

"If we want to continue our present success, we can not afford to be anything but generous to the man on the outside. If we treat him that way he is bound to join us sooner or later, because we are going to get more for our tobacco than he is for his—we are doing it this year—and we will continue to do it in the future."

"We can easily afford, therefore, to follow always a sensible and business-like policy."

COLLINS TO PUT SMELLERS ON JOB

(By Associated Press) Lexington, Ky., Feb. 23.—When moonshine mash begins to sour this spring in Kentucky it is the purpose of Sam Collins, State Prohibition Officer, to have federal agents and state enforcement officials co-operating with government authorities within smelling distance of most of the coves and valleys, where moonshine commonly is reported made. The entire force of 30 prohibition agents are here today receiving secret instructions how best to combat the expected spring moonshining activities. The meeting was held behind closed doors.

POOL CROP LOSES IN SALE TO PINHOOKER

Harry Francis, bookkeeper at the Burley Association warehouse where the pooled tobacco is being received, tells an interesting story, which illustrates the advantages that the pool is proving to tobacco growers in the way of prices. He says that a man named Andy Denny brought part of a pooled crop from Garrard county to sell on the Richmond non-pool market.

Before he could sell it that way, however, a "pinhooker" bought it at 20 cents a pound. The association officials learned of the transaction and went after the crop. It was secured, taken over to the pool warehouse, graded out and advances made on it amounted to 12 or 13 cents a pound. This would make the crop bring about 25 or 30 cents a pound at pool prices, indicating plainly, Mr. Francis points out, what an advantage it is to the growers to pool their crops. The Garrard county man was forced to give the money back to the local pinhooker, he says.

WAREHOUSE HEADS CLAIM HIGHER PRICES

Officials of the Home Tobacco Warehouse here protest over the statement being given widespread publicity that the pool crop is being sold for a higher price than the loose leaf floors are obtaining for their customers. They say that their figures show that the Home House here is far ahead of every market in the state, regardless of what kind it is. They say it seems probable also that only the best grades of the pool crop have been sold a yet.

Officials of the Burley Association here say that they have accurate figures on the local warehouse sales, but they declare that if the warehouse sales are as high or higher than the pool sales, Richmond is the only place in the state where such a condition obtains. They assert that detailed reports from other markets and the total of the entire sales of the state as made to the State Department of Agriculture, show pool sales much higher.

A complete detailed report of the sales by both methods for purposes of comparison would be interesting to everyone including farmers and growers.

THIS BIRD MADE IT BY WHOLESALE

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 23.—In the largest liquor raid ever made in Michigan, federal and local officers Wednesday seized intoxicants said to be worth $200,000 on the farm of James I. Day, near Lawton.

The seizure embraced 50 barrels of whiskey, all but ten barrels of which were declared to be well aged; 25 barrels of grape wine, 15 barrels of brandy and 25 barrels of mash. In the barn on Day's farm, officers said, a still of large capacity was found.

Day was brought to this city and held to await arraignment on a charge of operating an illicit still. According to the officers he had received orders for the entire amount. Needing funds, the officers quote him as saying, he sold a large amount to residents of Van Buren and Kalamazoo counties. One of the purchasers gave information that led to the raid.

Railway Wages Cut

Chicago, Feb. 23.—The Railroad Labor Board today smashed the pay of 10,000 stationary railroad firemen and oilers by eliminating extra pay until after ten hours, and setting up a split trick of 8 hours within a spread of 12 hours without any overtime pay.

WORM CAPTURED IS ALMOST A SNAKE

Berea Officers Come Upon Still In Full Operation—Arrest Man—Claims Innocence

A moonshine worm that is so large it is almost a "snake" was captured about half a mile from Big Hill by officers at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday night.

Two men were operating the still when Deputy Sheriff Ben Davis, Policeman Lawrence Powell and Special Deputy Rube Abney, of Berea, crept upon them. They had made one run and were preparing to make another.

It seems they must have heard the officers coming for they dropped everything and faded into the darkness before the officers could get to them. The officers lay in wait for some time thinking that the men might return.

In a short time, however, Jeff Settles came on the scene and went to the still and he was arrested. He claimed that he knew nothing of the still, but came to see a man who owed him some money. He was brought to jail, however, and held under $700 bond in circuit court and also held over to Federal court by U. S. Commissioner Bennett.

About 10 gallons of white whisky had been run by the men when the officers flushed them. There were eight or ten barrels of mash ready to run.

The worm was a very large one, two inches in diameter and gave evidence of having had much use. The still was destroyed by the officers and the worm brought to town. The officers say they located the still on the farm of a man named Hazelwood.

BUSINESS MEN ARE JOINING FAST

Richmond business men responded nobly to the canvass for members of the new Chamber of Commerce made Thursday afternoon by special committees. The canvass followed a delightful luncheon at the Kennedrich Dues of $4 a year seemed to be considered unusually reasonable by nearly everyone who was asked to join and very few refused. It was planned to continue the canvass until an organization is secured that will be enabled to do something for Richmond. The people appear to realize that a properly conducted Chamber of Commerce is an organization of great possible benefit to the community.

The jury which tried the case in circuit court of John Ballard against W. S. Jones and Sons returned a verdict in favor of Mr. Ballard of $1 and costs. The suit was over rental contract on Mr. Ballard's Silver Creek farm.

John M. Berger was given judgment against Mary Abney for $580 in a suit and the Berea Bank and Trust Co. was given judgment against E. C. Wynn.

Dog Carries Mail Twelve Miles, Twice A Week

Mayfield, Feb. 23.—A black shepherd, owned by Walter Rhorer is counted the most remarkable dog in Graves county. Twice a week he carries mail to home of Walter Rhorer, 12 miles away, gets his dinner and returns home. Messages, packages and even money are attached to his collar for delivery at the homes. He shows positive understanding of the responsibility he bears, and has never been known to chase a rabbit, engage in a fight or allow anything to delay or distract him.

SAYS FATAL REVOLVER BELONGED TO CHINK

(By Associated Press) Detroit, Mich., Feb. 23.—Authorities here today are trying to trace the recent movements of Harry M. Fields, a prisoner in the county jail, who claims he can furnish leading clues in the murder of William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director in Los Angeles. Although they doubt his story, last night he told officers he had driven two men, one of them a Chinese, to Taylor's home on the night of the killing and received $800 for his work. He said the revolver with which Taylor was killed belonged to the Chinese.

We hope to meet again on many similar occasions.

Mule Brings $2

Master Commissioner John B. Stout yesterday sold a 11-year-old, 16 hands high, mule at auction in front of the court house for $2. This is doubtless the lowest price ever paid for a mule, but it does not necessarily indicate that the price of mules is coming down—as his muleship was not in the best condition.—Danville Messenger.

DR. BANKS WRITES FROM FAR-OFF INDIA

Former Richmond Pastor Tells Of His Life And Work Among the Heathen

Rev. G. C. Banks, formerly pastor of the Second Christian church here, now a missionary to India, has written an interesting letter to Mr. J. A. Todd here. He writes it as a sort of general letter to his many friends here, inasmuch as he, of course, hasn't the time to write to all at length. They will read it with great interest.

Ruth, U. P., India, Jan. 17

My Dear Christian Friends:

As it will soon be near the usual time for our missionary offering this year, I thought you might perhaps be interested in a brief message from a former minister who is now on the foreign field. While we have not been here very long there are several things though which we have been able to see. At present we are very busy trying to get the language so will be able to go out and speak to the people. There are certainly enough of them here and in a very few minutes you can get a crowd anywhere. But we are not able to study as diligently here as we were in America, because of the glare of the sunlight in the eyes. Also we have been to be careful about the direct rays of the sun and never step out during the day without helmets. Already I have had two touches of the sun and both times I was unconscious for a little while and weak and nervous for some time afterward. During the winter season the climate is pleasant and agreeable, but the direct rays of the sun are fierce and get a person before he realizes it.

The name of our place is pronounced like the English word "rot" and we are about twenty miles from a railroad without a motor, wagon or buggy. Our most dignified form of transportation is an ox-cart! This can be converted into a sleeping place (after a fashion) and we can go in over night when there is no danger from the sun to a foreigner. Some of the natives have camels and a few wealthy ones own elephants. Many of the natives walk and they pay no attention to the sun. In our town there are about ten or twelve thousand people, and in religion they are about equally divided between Hindus and Mohammedans. We have a little group of about fifty Christians and a small church in which to worship. In addition to our communion and preaching service on Sunday we have our Sunday School and Christian Endeavor. Then, too, we go into the different sections of the town where gather the children and a few old people around us and have what we call our "outside Sunday Schools."

Here we sing, show them pictures of Bible incidents, teach them Bible stories and have them tell them to us again, and in general teach them the A B C of Christianity. Few, if any of them, can read or write and this makes it a very slow process to teach them. Once a month picture cards are given to those who have been regular for the past four Sundays. These are supplied by friends in America, who send their old picture cards or decent post cards. The Indian is very fond of them and is always asking for more.

This land is full of places of worship—Mohammedan mosques and Hindu shrines. All along the roads and scattered through the villages are these little stone and cement places with their idols and other crude representations whose descriptions would not be considered very nice by people of refined taste and morals. Granville Kelly has moved to Virgil Tudor's place near here. The many friends of R. G. Stafford are glad to see him at home again. He has been in the Gibson hospital at Richmond for about eight weeks, being treated for a fractured limb.

There is a very noticeable tide in the Kentucky river here.

Dr. Bailey reports many cases of flu and pneumonia in this section.

W. R. Burgess was in Valley View yesterday, bringing R. G. Stafford home from the Gibson hospital.

Miss Laura Cox, age 34, died at her home near Valley View after a lingering illness of dropsy. Funeral services were held at the home by Bro. Warner, of Valley View. Burial in the family burying ground. "Sleeping with the willows drifted over her head, snow white dew-gemmed roses cover her bright head; they but shine the casket, the spirit snow-white dove bath on angel pinions soared to heaven above."

one section of the town here is a shrine dedicated to the Hindu god of children diseases. To it the women of the place come and pray for their children who have mumps, measles, chicken-pox, etc. It is a very dirty and foul place and it looks like there has never been a cleaning up day. A few weeks ago we went into a shrine just back of our compound. It is in an enclosure about thirty feet square with a concrete wall about the place. In front is a wall where they do their sacred bathing. Passing by this we went through the only gate and found ourselves in the first court. Calling to the priest who was still further within, we waited until he appeared. A small old man with long beard and hair soon welcomed us and began talking in a most friendly manner. He told us we could come in if we would leave our shoes outside. It was a holy place and leather is thought to be most unclean. In the next court was the shrine. A small white bit of masonry about four feet square, perhaps a little higher and on top of which rested a turnip-shaped dome of classic Indian mould. Above this towered a large peepul tree which sheltered the temple with its dense overhanging foliage. The entire court was fitted with a smooth concrete floor and in appearance it was neat. One entire side of the shrine had been left for an opening. As the old sadhu drew back the curtain that covered this and his assistant placed a lighted candle within, we beheld on the opposite wall the crude form of Mahadev—one of their great gods. It was a front view of the nude idol about three feet high, with a coating of crimson. Usually about 8 in the evenings we had heard the bells at this shrine ringing and had wondered the reason. The priest told me that whenever the real Mahadev was hungry the thought would enter the idol's head and then the bells were rung. Around this place also were a few of the symbols which belong to the class of unmentionables I referred to a few minutes ago. Back of this was still another court where the priest lived and where there was a room also for the spirit of the dead man who many generations ago gave the funds to build the shrine. Whenever the priest is crowded with other priestly company this spirit is moved out for a few days to make room. None but members of the Brahmin caste are permitted to enter this place. The old man was very friendly and talked in a quiet, persuasive manner earnestly on his religion in which no doubt he believes most firmly. Yet as we left we felt more than ever before that "the heathen in his blindness bows down to wood and stone."

The Hindus are firm believers in their caste system. The members of the different castes will not intermarry nor have anything to do with each other in a social way. They will not accept food or water from a lower caste nor partake of it if they know that even the vessels have been touched. The other day the Tashildar (wife of the chief official of the town) sent us up some butter. Mrs. Banks took it and wanted to wash the dishes after it was emptied, but the little boy who brought it would not let her at all. If we start to go in some place (there are only a few where men can go) the owner goes ahead and moves the water jars so that we will not touch them as we pass by. Much of the medicine we give is in powdered form for they feel that if they accepted any water from our hands it would defile them. Neither will we drink their water before we have been assured it has been boiled to kill germs. We boil every bit we use. A child is born in a certain caste but not legally a member of it until he reaches a certain age and is voted in. Then his family makes a great feast to all the members of the caste living in that place. Then if he defiles himself in some way to break caste he must do some electioneering and provide another big feast to get himself voted back in. If a man wishes he can be voted into a lower caste but never a higher one than that to which his parents belong. Parents make all the arrangements for the marriage of the children. Many are married when mere children. Our gardener's daughter is about ten and has been married three years. She was going to our school but has quit, as married women should not go to school. This is a big affair and costs the father great deal. Frequently it is necessary for a poor man to mortgage all he has and everything he can get to marry off his daughter. Perhaps this is one reason why girls are not wanted in Indian homes. The other day Mrs. Banks was in a well-to-do home where the daughter is soon to be married and her trousseau consisted of forty dresses and literally bushels of jewelry. This is the time of the year for the first wedding, or shadi. There are great feasts, marches to the temples with the band and a lot of other ceremonies we have not found out. Then when the girl reaches her early teens, she is taken to her husband's home to live.

It is the zenith of immodesty for a high caste woman to be seen by any man except those of her own household. They never go anywhere except at night or in complete concealment. Whenever the Tashildar comes to visit Mrs. Banks or Miss Furman, she rides in a closed cart and in coming from the front of the veranda into the house she is covered with a sheet lest she be seen. When she comes I must go in hiding and remain so until she leaves. Many of the poorer women who have to work and

AT THE MOVIES

Big Supporting Cast for Tearle in "The Fighter"

An elaborately appointed reception room in the foreground, with conservatory showing thru from the background and a big drawing room at the left was one of the big sets built and placed for the Conway Tearle picture "The Fighter," at local theatres Thursday. In addition to this large set a twelve piece orchestra furnished music and over 100 extras took part in the scenes. Two soloists from the Metropolitan Company imparted the vocal touch to the gathering.

Brother Directs Brother

In the picture "For Those We Love" which is shown at local theatres Friday, Arthur Rosson is the director and his brother, Richard Rosson, is in the role of a ne'er-do-well brother of the heroine. The younger brother has often assisted his director brother; but in Miss Compson's picture it was decided that "inasmuch as he could make up so well for the part, that he be given it. His work was highly commended by Miss Compson. As the brothers know each other's ideas on photoplay acting very well the director had little trouble when his actor brother played in a scene.

LAW FOR REMOVAL OF CARELESS OFFICIALS

(By Associated Press)

Frankfort, Feb. 23—The governor would have the power to remove peace officers in cities and counties which have outbreaks like those in Newport, where troops now are stationed, under a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Herman F. Monroe, of Louisville. The bill carries an emergency clause and would become a law on passage and approval by the governor.

The law now allows the governor to summarily remove jailers who permit prisoners to be taken and lynched.

The Monroe bill it is understood, was originated as a result of the Newport trouble and the frequent calls for troops to guard courts and put down trouble in other sections of the state. Its backers believe that with some authority having the power to remove peace officials for failure to enforce the law, such calls will be reduced to a minimum.

The text of the bill follows: "Whenever in any municipality or county in the commonwealth of Kentucky, a riot, or other civil commotion, arises or exists whereby the lives of citizens therein and their property are in danger or threatened with injury or destruction, to that extent whereby it is now by law made the duty of the Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, as the chief civil magistrate of the commonwealth of Kentucky, to intervene in order to protect lives and property of citizens residing in said municipality or county, then in that event, it shall be the duty of the governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky to cause written notice to be given to any peace officer, whose duty it is to conserve the peace and enforce the law and order in said municipality or county, wherein riot or civil commotion has broken out and exists, why such peace officer or officers shall not be summarily removed from office. Said written notice shall be executed upon said officer or officers not less than ten days before a public hearing thereon shall be given by the Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky and if upon hearing, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky shall be satisfied from the proof heard that said officer or officers have been derelict in their duties and have failed or refused to take all steps within their power to preserve the peace and enforce law and order, the governor is hereby empowered to summarily remove said officer or officers from office; and the governor shall record in his executive journal the reasons for said removal from office.

"Upon removal from office of any peace officer, as provided for in this act, there is hereby declared to exist a vacancy in the office from which such officer has been removed and said vacancy to said office shall be filled as now provided for by law.

"Whereas, there now exists in one or more municipalities and counties in this commonwealth

SHEEP AUTHORITIES ADVOCATE LAMB CARE

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 22—Prominent sheep raisers, packers and stock yards officials have joined in advocating that Kentucky farmers dock and unsex their lambs before sending them to the market as a means of realizing greater profits from their flocks and supplying the consumers of mutton with a more desirable product according to a statement being sent to sheep raisers of the state by the extension division of the College of Agriculture.

Demonstrations to show farmers the proper methods of docking and altering their lambs are being done by sheep specialists of the division at this time of the year with the result that farmers in many counties have been shown how to do the work. The campaign now in progress is expected to bring about considerable improvement in the quality of Kentucky lambs that go to the market, according to the specialists.

The statement of a prominent Chicago packing concern which is included in the statement being sent to Kentucky farmers follows:

"It may seem a bit irrelevant to the purchaser of the lamb crop whether or not the lambs were docked or castrated previous to slaughter but the fact that it does make a difference is expressed in the price the market will pay for properly trimmed lambs. The castrated lamb fattens more rapidly and uniformly, the meat is of superior flavor, the animal reaches a higher degree of flesh and the fat intermingles more intimately with the lean."

The following statement from W. S. Bell, president of the Louisville Livestock Exchange, also is included:

"Both docking and castrating are simple and easy and will be remunerative in price and gain in weight. Ewes and wether lambs are attractive to buyers and will outsell the general market from 50 cents to $1.25 a hundred. In addition they will hold steady on many days when the general market is lower."

George Wilbur, of Marysville, Ohio, president of the Ohio Wool Growers' Association, is credited with this statement in the one being sent to farmers:

"I have produced more hot house lambs than any other breeder in America and I never fail to castrate my lambs even though they usually go to market when about ten weeks old."

SOUR CREAM COSTS $330,000 ANNUALLY

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 22—Marketing their cream in a sour condition rather than in the clean, sweet condition desired by dairy manufacturers costs Kentucky farmers about $330,000 a year according to a statement issued today at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, calling attention to the need for better care of cream before it is sent to market.

A part of the sour cream being sent to the market is the result of an erroneous belief on the part of some farmers that souring raises the richness of cream. There is no foundation for this belief, the station dairymen say. The remainder of the sour cream is the natural result of poor care given dairy products on the farm. As a result of the large amount of sour cream which is sent to dairy manufacturers, the state annually produces about 5,500,000 pounds of butter scoring around $2 points that sells for from five to eight cents less a pound than does 92 score butter which can be made from clean, sweet cream, according to the statement. This difference in price between the two grades of butter eventually influences the price which farmers receive for their cream to the extent of more than a $300,000 loss each year, the station dairymen say.

While some creameries are paying a higher price for sweet, clean cream than they are for sour cream, the production of the desirable product is a problem for the farmer and one that he must work out himself, the statement points out.

Souring not only fails to increase the richness of the cream but also may result in contamination with various germs and ferments that seriously handicap the butter maker in his attempts to produce a high quality product, according to dairymen.

RUM RUNNERS RUN WILD OFF COAST

Washington, Feb. 23—Federal prohibition agents in Georgia are waging an unequal war on rum runners operating along the coast according to a report to Commissioner Haynes from General Agent Mack Overpeck and Federal Prohibition Agent W. P. Plinchum, at Savannah.

The report describes the condition of the illicit liquor traffic along the Georgia coast and the dangers encountered by prohibition agents in combatting the rum smugglers who are declared to be heavily armed and quick on the trigger.

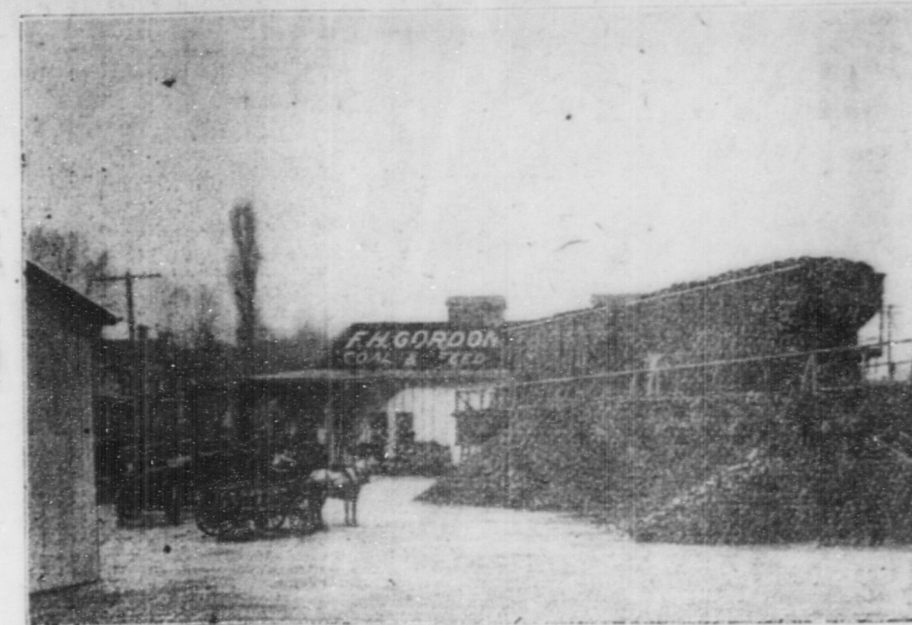

"It is reported here through what we consider reliable information," the report said, "that at least once or twice a week, boats coming from Bimini Island or elsewhere, carrying from 200 to 2,500 cases of liquor are unloaded

COULD HARDLY STAND AT TIMES

Hips, Back and Legs Would Have That Tired Ache

Everett, Washington.—"For several years I have had trouble with the lower part of my back and my hips and my legs would ache with that tired ache. I could hardly stand on my feet at times. I was always able to do my work although I did not feel good. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and having heard several praise it I decided to try it. I feel first-rate at the present time. It has done wonders for me and I keep it in the house right along. I always recommend it to others who are sick and ailing."—Mrs. J. M. SIBBERT, 4032 High St., Everett, Washington.

To do any kind of work, or to play for that matter, is next to impossible if you are suffering from some form of female trouble. It may cause your back or your legs to ache, it may make you nervous and irritable. You may be able to keep up and around, but you do not feel good. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women. It is especially adapted to relieve the cause of the trouble and then these annoying pains, aches and "no good" feelings disappear. It has done this for many, many women; why not give it a fair trial—now.

MENACE TO LIFE

Cold Germs Multiply by the Millions—To Fortify and Strengthen the Physical Resistance Is Very Important.

The common everyday cold is now regarded by medical authorities as a deadly menace to health and life. Any person contracting a cold and allowing it to drag is flirting with death. Every sensible person should upon the first sign of any hot flash, followed by a chill, or any tightness in the chest, sore throat or other cold symptoms, consult a physician at once.

One of the most effective home treatments and which is today used by millions of people is to take a steaming hot cupful of Bulgarian Blood Tea which can be had at any drug store. This hot medicinal tea assists nature to purify and strengthen the weak blood, stimulate the inactive kidneys and cast the stagnant poisons from the bowels and intestinal tract. The rich juices brewed from the plants, roots, barks, leaves, herbs and flowers that compose Bulgarian Blood Tea permeate the whole system and are wonderfully healthful.
